needs of the people, they set up the parish program, “Saving Souls the Credit Union Way.”

The parish program is the seed of VICTO National. From a local co-op, it has evolved into global cooperative training and development center with more than 227 direct and active co-op affiliates. Its aggregate assets is upwards of PHP 9 Billion and counts at least 500,000 individual members comprising of farmers, fishermen, students, housewives, professional, entrepreneurs, vendors and indigenous peoples.

Such diversity in membership disperses the benefits of cooperation to practically the whole gamut of society, making the federation an important catalyst for social change and economic reform in the Philippines.

▪ Structure & Governance of the Organization	The OR-KOOP Central Union defines itself as the organizing force of Forest Villagers. ORKOOP is a genuine democratic popular movement born out of years of struggle as a result of the sacrifices of thousands of forest villagers. ORKOOP, the Central Union of Forestry Cooperatives of Turkey, was established on July 11, 1997, with the gathering of 7 regional unions. OR-COOP; Forests work to ensure that the villagers receive a fair share of the national income. In Turkey, activities to develop and expand forests are aimed at realizing forestry production according to national interests. The forest fulfills the leadership role to provide social rights to the villagers. It works on training, supervision and support to raise awareness in forest villages and cooperatives. The vertical organization of the village cooperatives took some time in their own dynamics. There are 8219 agricultural development cooperatives in Turkey. These cooperatives are partners of 889.206. 4,000 of these cooperatives are located in forest villages. These cooperatives have more than 400 forest villagers. According to ORKOOP, there are 28 regional associations and 2,440 cooperative partners according to the year 2017. The common number of these cooperatives is 294.403. 18 of these district associations and 1.506 of unit cooperatives are predominantly interested in forestry. There are 167,841 forest villagers in common for forestry-related cooperatives.
--	---

	Most of the cooperatives, which are OR-KOOP members, deal mostly with forestry. In addition to forestry activities, they also engage in agriculture and animal husbandry. A large part of forestry activities in Turkey are carried out in forestry cooperatives. ORKOOP follows international co-operative principles. OR-KOOP takes its power from its partners. Description

Forestry work is the most dangerous business after mining. Forest villagers who perform this service are experiencing various work accidents and sometimes accidents result in death. OR-KOOP provides social assistance to forest villagers who make up the lowest income group of our country to help themselves and their families. The losses incurred by partners are compensated according to the criteria set out in the OR-KOOP Mutual Fund and financial support is given to the remaining family members in case of death. OR-KOOP regional cooperative unions are funded by primary cooperative partners in the case of deaths, benefits, or disabilities due to work accidents during forestry and other agricultural activities.

OR-KOOP is a cooperative top organization that has realized important projects with its technical capacity and project experiences. So far, we have implemented many national and international resources and projects. ORKOOP provided services for partners and cooperatives of our country with these projects. One of the project works is in the field of vocational qualification.

Working in the forests is difficult because of the natural conditions. Even the use of tools and machinery in the forests depends on the knowledge and skills of their workers. The vast majority are caused by the fact that the forest workers of forest villagers have learned from their experiences. For this reason, work accidents are high. More than 70% of forestry work in Turkey is undertaken by forest cooperatives and partners. Forest villagers are trained by the Ministry of Forestry and cooperatives. For this reason, studies are being carried out to prevent occupational accidents.

A large part of its partners, the ORKOOP, a forest peasant, has received the sole authority to issue vocational qualification certificates in some jobs, particularly forestry, in forests. He has also undertaken the responsibility of issuing certificates in forestry work as well as the trainings he has given before.
